STATEBOARDGRANTS HUMENIK A PARDON

Slovan Postmaster, Sentenced to Four Months In the Allegheny County Workhouse By Judge Cummins, Freed

TO GET HIS RELEASE TODAY

Sentencing Is Sequel to An Altercation Between Humenik And Justice Henry Tennyson of Slovan — Charged With Wantonly Pointing Firearms

Yesterday Governor Gifford Pinchot granted a pardon to Mike Humenik, postmaster at Slovan, sentenced by Judge Erwin Cummins on August 20 to serve a term of four months in the Allegheny county workhouse on his conviction last November of a charge of wantonly pointing firearms.

The application for pardon was argued at the September meeting of the pardon board at Harrisburg. The recommendation for pardon went to the governor yesterday and was immediately approved by him. The pardon is on its way to Washington and Humenik, who has been in jail since the middle of August, will be released today.

The sentencing of Humenik to a term of four months in the work house by Judge Cummins, was the sequel to an altercation between Humenik and Justice Henry Tennyson of Slovan over a year ago, which resulted in Humenik being tried at the November term of court last year on an indictment charging wantonly pointing firearms and assault with firearms. The trial resulted in his being convicted on the charge of pointing firearms and in his acquittal of the assault charge.

When the verdict was returned, the district attorney moved for judgment, and Judge Cummins sentenced Humenik to pay the costs, suspending sentence as to imprisonment, admonishing Humenik to return to his home and patch up his quarrel with Tennyson. Humenik complied with the order of the court and paid the costs.

Later, he was arrested in connection with the dynamiting of the home of Mr. Tennyson, and after a hearing was discharged, there being no evidence to implicate him in any way with the dynamiting outrage. Then he was called into court and the four months to the workhouse imposed on the conviction nine months before in which he had paid the costs and otherwise complied with the order of the court.

Following the sentence preparations were at once made to take the case before the pardon board, it being felt in many quarters that Humenik was being persecuted. District Attorney Howard W. Hughes opposed the granting of the pardon and in his argument intimated that the real purpose of the application was to have the board administer an executive spanking to the judge and the district attorney. C. L. V. Acheson argued the case for Humenik, urging the pardon on the grounds that he had been sentenced at the time of his conviction, had complied with the order of the court and that it was unjust to drag him in nine months later to impose an additional penalty. The action of the pardon board recommending a pardon was unanimous.

Humenik has been postmaster at Slovan for a number of years, and has been a most efficient officer. A number of times he has been officially commended by the department for his activities in connection with securing postal savings deposits and selling treasury savings certificates. The postoffice authorities took an active interest in securing his pardon and addressed several communications to the pardon board Postmaster General New sent a letter highly commending him for his conduct of the office and for his action in preventing Justice Tennyson from entering the postoffice which led to his conviction and subsequent sentence.

BIG WINTER FOR THE BUILDING TRADES PREDICTED

Philadelphia, Oct. 3—The American Insulation company of this city is preparing for the busiest winter's roofing season in its history according to John W. Latchum, its president.

The announcement has struck some old-time builders and roofers with surprise. They consider winter a [illegible] Latchum adds his confidence to Secretary of Commerce Hoover's pronouncements in favor of extending the building season over the entire year, and partly to the experiments his own company has made over the past four or five years.

"Winter roofing is very practicable [illegible] The chief opposition to it is one of custom prejudice. Roofers have always thought the weather from about December 1 to April 1 prohibited their work They have never counted up the fine days every winter when it is as practicable to lay shingles, or spread asphalt, as it is in the spring or summer. We have. By keeping a large crew of roofers available through the winter, and working on every clear day, or clear part of a day, we have disposed of a large number of roofing contracts satisfactorily, with no greater cost to our customers than when we worked only in the spring and summer.

"This will be one of our biggest winters, and to the rest of the building trades I can only say, with Secretary Hoover, "come on in, the water's fine," concludes Mr. Latchum

The Contract For A Bridge Is Awarded

The county commissioners on Wednesday awarded the contract for the bridge over Speers Run at Belle Vernon to the Farris Engineering Company of Pittsburgh. The contract price was $16,251. This bridge is to be constructed jointly by both Fayette and Westmoreland counties, and is the connecting link in the new river boulevard between Monessen and Belle Vernon. Contractors have been busily engaged for some time on this highway [illegible] ing rapidly.

E. G. Sheets, superintendent of bridges in Westmoreland county, stated that his men are about to complete the work of painting the iron and wooden bridges of the county. The majority of the bridges have been painted battleship gray, with the wheelguards painted white. The advantage of white wheelguards is known to all drivers of vehicles at night. Altogether 30 bridges have been painted.

Westmoreland county now has 17 concrete bridges. These structures need no paint, and cost but little for repairs.

INQUEST FOR OFFICER RAE

Dr L. S. Strawn, deputy coroner at West Newton, Tuesday held an inquest on the death of Policeman George Rae, who died in the McKeesport hospital September 16. While the policeman died in Allegheny county, the coroner of that county gave permission to the Westmoreland coroner to hold the inquest for reason that the shooting took place in Westmoreland county. The jury deliberated on the testimony of several witnesses and found that Rae came to his death from a bullet wound inflicted by James Scott, and recommended that he shall be held for action of the grand jury.

George Sweeney, treasurer of the Elks fund at West Newton and one of the committee of five appointed to look after the awarding of the $1,000 for the capture of James Scott, negro slayer of Chief of Police George Rae, early September 17, said that three persons are interested in the reward but that no action will be taken until after the trial of the negro

He said the reward will be paid when all claims have been given due attention, but that action will be delayed until the negro is brought to trial. The $1,000 is being held in the First National bank.

Captain McLaughlin of the State police at Greensburg, was in receipt of a letter from Thomas Trimble, one of the deputies by whose efforts the apprehension of Scott was brought about, saying that due to his work he would be unable to appear and asking Captain McLaughlin to look after his claims for the money.

Mr. Sweeney said that the money likely would be paid through Detective Paul Feightner.

ABRUPT ENDING TO A SMOKER

To wind-up the season of outdoor boxing the committee who ahs been promoting the shows in Charleroi decided to end it with a smoker, and the basement of the building at 532 McKean avenue was secured for the purpose. A number of invitations had been issued to the fans, who have been interested in making the season a successful one and they assembled for supper at 6 o'clock. After the supper they were entertained with a comedy boxing bout between John McFeeley and Young Cutsey. Later in the evening, other games were indulged in by some of those in attendance. However, about 12 o'clock, three [illegible] the building and put a damper on the festivities. After a thorough search of the premises two of those in attendance were arrested on a technical charge of possessing liquor, information being made against them before Squire J. B. Smith, before whom they will [illegible] next week for a hearing.

The state troopers stated that they had been tipped off that a full-fledged cock fight was to take place in this building, and came over from Washington to make a general clean-up. However, they stated, this was not the case, the only information that could be made against anyone being that of possessing liquor. All others in attendance were permitted to leave the building.

EASY TO GET LICENSE FOR AN AUTOMOBILE

The Automobile Division of the State Highway department has made the application of a 1925 automobile license so easy that it almost puts a premium on laziness The Division has sent many license holders an application filled up to the last blank save that for signature. All the applicant need do is sign his name to the application, write a check for the amount specified and use the self addressed envelope and, if he is not too lazy to post the letter, await the receipt of his tags and license card.

This plan obviates the need for going before notaries and paying fees for affidavits. It relieves teh applicant of about everything except signing his name and writing his check. Public service cannot go much beyond this without coddling the public injuriously.

Like as not, however, the last days of December will find a long file of applicants awaiting their turn at the license window. They will be the disciples of procrastination. In their misery they will be blistering the automobile officials, condemning the "red tape" and chanting the old player for branch license depots throughout the state.

These will get little sympathy. They are getting direct and through the newspapers four months' notice of what is ahead. Such alibis as they offer will be feeble The automobile division is doing its part in unprecelented fashion It is offering to do everything but attach the tags to the car Even if that were done, the tardy applicant would still bob up

JOHNSON TO TAKE SCANDAL TO COURT

MEMBERS ARE HURRYING HOME FOR ELECTION

London, Oct. 3—Outgoing trains from London today were crowded with members of parliament hurrying home to their constituencies to start oratorical fireworks in preparation for a general election.

An attack will be launched at the special session which is to be resumed next Wednesday, the subject of a Conservative motion of censure being withdrawal by the attorney general of the prosecution of a Communist editor for sedition.

If the government weathers this storm—and it will depend upon how MacDonald plays his cards—defeat later on seems inevitable, the preparations are under way for an election in November.

Will Confer With His Attorneys to Prepare a Plan of Federal Court Action —Determined to See the Guilty Ones Punished

THE SERIES SHOULD BE OFF

According to the President of the American League—Angry Because He Is Not Officially Notified — Believes Government Should Protect Baseball

Chicago, Oct. 3—Ban Johnson, president of the American League, will confer with his attorneys in Washington Sunday to prepare a plan of federal court action in the baseball scandal involving two New York National League players, he announced.

Johnson is determined to see the guilty ones punished and believes the world's series between Washington and the Giants should be called off.

"Investigation of the scandal should be made by the federal courts," Johnson said. "Such an investigation will uncover an astonishing lot of scandal in the ranks of baseball."

Johnson is angry because he was not officially notified of Commissioner Landis's investigation of attempts by Jimmy O'Connell and "Cozy" Dolan to bribe Shortstop Sand of the Philadelphia club to throw a game between the Phillies and Giants.

"Landis must have known of this before he left for the east and I do not understand why he did not send me word," Johnson said.

The federal courts should take a hand in the investigation because baseball is a national pastime, Johnson declared.

"The government should protect baseball and eliminate the rotten influences at work to corrupt the game."

It was found that it would cost about $600 to bring the prisoner to Pennsylvania so the matter was referred to the Ohio state officials, and Steinmetz was returned to the institution from which he was paroled.

BIG "SCRIMMAGE" TOMORROW AFTERMOON

Charleroi Prepared For Homestead, Well Known Officials Chosen, Good Weather Is Promised

Homestead Coming on Special Train

According to a story printed in the Homestead Messenger of yesterday, Homestead promises to be depopulated—at least of the sporting element and fans of the gridiron game tomorrow, for at least 400 train tickets will be sold for the contest between the high school team of that city and the Charleroi High school aggregation.

A special train will carry the rooters leaving Homestead with the team, at 1 o'clock—a crowd who will come here with the ostensible purpose of lowering the colors of Charleroi High.

Scrimmage was held again yesterday afternoon and the offensive tactics were given most attention by the coach. Judging from appearances the team is all set and while the Coach is making no predictions it is expected that Charleroi will win.

Little is known of Homestead High School in foot-ball up this part of the valley. Their basketball teams have always been strong and press reports indicate that their foot-ball team this year is equally strong. Their line is made of big men and their backfield is fast and heavy.

California High School plays this same team next Saturday at Homestead and Coach Stepanian is anxious to make a good showing as comparison of scores seems to be a big factor in judging team ability in Western Pennsylvania scholastic foot-ball circles.

Good officials have been secured for to-morrow's game. They are as follows:

Referee - Story - Tufts
Umpire - Mates - Allegheny
Linesman - Glass - Bucknell

These men are rated as high and their services are in demand throughout the league. Story and Mates are familiar to Charleroi fans while last year fans who witnessed the Charleroi Rochester High School game remember Glass, who umpired.

Saturday will be the last chance to buy a season ticket. They will be sold outside the grounds at $2.00 each.

General admission will be 50c. The Kick-off takes place at 3:00 o'clock.

Paper Says Homestead Team Is Terribly "Crippled" But, Charleroi, Watch This Crippled Team

The Homestead Messenger of yesterday printed a story to the effect that the Homestead High school team is in a terribly crippled condition and that all its "good" men are on the hospital list for their game with Charleroi High tomorrow afternoon, as a result of their game with Norwin High last Saturday.

The story is given here and it will be noticed that the team scrimmaged every night until dark and that a crowd of several hundred rooters will accompany the team to Charleroi tomorrow.

Fans, don't be fooled. Homestead is coming to Charleroi with their regular team with the intention of taking home the game. Here is the "crippled" condition of the Homestead team:

"The Steelers again find themselves in a frisky position, with six regulars on the injured list and a tough team like Charleroi at hand.

"Splatt, veteran center, has not been out for practice all week, having a ligament twisted in his knee. Splatt was in the limelight in last Friday's game. Flaherty, stellar end, has been out with the team but was not allowed to scrimmage because of a muscle bruised over a short rib. He received this injury in the Norwin game and was forced to leave the field of action. Pfieffer, regular full back, has a bad hand and has not been out for practice all week. Bannon is still out with a torn muscle in his leg. Mack who put up such a good game at quarterback is out with an infected chin. It is doubtful whether either Splatt, Mack or Pfieffer will be in the lineup against Charleroi this coming Saturday.

"Reports have been received saying that Charleroi will have a heavy and well coached team to stack up against the Steelers. They are said to have a veteran team, having lost only a few men by graduation. The game looks to be as tough as the one played with Norwin. Charleroi fans will turn out one hundred per cent.

"In yesterday's practice "Wally" Ha showed up exceptionally well in the backfield, being a line plunger of no little note. Morgan, Evans and Trautman have also been working out in the backfield. Gillard, a newcomer, has been rounding up at guard.

"This past week the team has been scrimmaging every night until dark, and every player who was physically fit, was given a chance. A real battle is assured this Saturday."

DREYFUSS SAYS THE WHOLE GIANT TEAM INVOLVED IN BRIBE

Pittsburgh, Oct. 3—The latest baseball scandal resulting in the expulsion of "Jimmy" O'Connell and Cozy Dolan reveals incidentally, the extent of the "grudge" existing for years between Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates and John McGraw.

For years Dreyfuss and McGraw have not been on speaking terms and the Pirate owner consistenly refused the Pirate owner consistenly refused Giants.

And now, Dreyfuss calls on Judge Landis to call off the World series, claiming O'Connell and Dolan were the "goats" and that the whole Giant team is involved in the bribe offer.

Dreyfuss whose team for a time threatened to win the pennant, admits he is angry at the Giants for tampering with his players. He cited an incident that occurred last year, when he claims Dolan approached "Pie" Traynor, star third baseman, and urged him to hold out for $15,000 salary.

"Pep." O'Brien Had Too Much Pep. And Cuddy Fell At McKeesport Last Night

To be a fighter, particularly one iring to championship heights, one ist keep in condition and keep his nd on his work. This morning nddy" Demarco, heretofore victor all his McKeesport bouts, probably dizes this iron-clad rule. Last night ddy lost a 10-round verdict to "Pep" Brien of Scranton a mediocre battler th little else than a right swing tall his repertoire. And the Mesport—fight fans, who longingly re looked forward to the night Demarco would be beaten, have at last d their desire satiated.

But O'Brien deserving as he was of e verdict, has Referee Joe Keally to ank for the swing in his favor, nich, while justly earned, was placed jeopardy when the judges split, one lling it a draw and the other figug DeMarco had won. It was a repeion of last week's weird judging ork, with the tables being reversed e referee this time being the only e right, while last week he was the ly one wrong.

DeMarco, living an easy life during cent months, underrating all opponents and caring only to win by a pular shade, last night was caught f balance, manhandled roughly durg the first three rounds and then ven another dose of the same treatent during three of the last four Brien, battering Cuddy about the st three rounds until it began to ok as though the Charleroian would t survive, took a big enough lead still be in front after DeMarco, urting with his jabbing and left oking, took the fourth, fifth, and th. O'Brien then took the seventh nth and tenth, lost the eighth but d a decided edge at the finish, which emed a welcome bell to DeMarco. Seldom has Cuddy been buffeted out early in a fight as he was in e first three rounds, when O'Brien ooting a right hand, which sometnes he threw clear from the outld or brought up from the floor a la eorge Chip, banged Cuddy almost ithout return on the head and jaw. ad the Scranton lad been a puncher would have been curtains for the tle lad who has learned to use the ight lights more than training ms.

To DeMarco's credit, however, it ust be said that he took his pasting ith much more grace than even his nemies anticipated. With O'Brien rving the fight, throwing both ands with reckless abandon and still ing able to land. Cuddy fought as st he knew how, didn't whimper hen a few hit him low and weathed the first three rounds only by an expected display of gameness.

In the fourth Cuddy turned the tide his favor with a terrific left and ght to the body and for a time it oked as though O'Brien was hunth Cuddy galloped, while the crowd ecored his comeback. Then, when ings began to look good for him he mitted O'Brien to commence swingg the right again and lost the outh.

'Brien took advantage of the lull in arco's work, caused by lack of ing and a conceited air, kept with his right through the and tenth and had enough to the finish that the crowd was dumfounded when the announcer let it be known that the judges had split. But Keally came to the rescue and the rightful winner got his dues.

O'Brien was just a tough mug, the suit DeMarco has made look foolish at other times. But he carried the fight in his own awkward way; came back after once wanting to quit and found that DeMarco was still sucker for the right to the head and jaw. It was a good fight in spots, DeMarco's come-back furnishing a thrill in the fourth, and splitting with O'Brien's successful swinging in giving the crowd a treat.

NEMACOLIN PLAYING MONON VALLEY CLUB TODAY

The Monongahela Valley Country club is entertaining the Nemacolin club, at a return match, to be played over their course this afternoon. This contest will end the golf matches for the season, and it is expected that the affair will be of more than unusual interest.

These two clubs met once before, in mid-summer, at the Nemacolin links, at which time the Nemacolin club won by a large score. However, the players of the Monongahela Valley Country club hope to reverse the verdict today, and expect to have their best players in line for the contest.

It is estimated that about 45 members of the Nemacolin team will be present, and after the game they will be regaled with a dinner at the club house.

LANDIS ORDERS WORLD'S SERIES GAMES PLAYED

The 1924 world's series will go on notwithstanding that baseball was shaken to its foundations yesterday by a whirlwind succession of developments growing out of the attempt of Jimmy O'Connell, young New York outfielder, to bribe Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop, in the game that decided the National league pennant race for the Giants.

This was the declaration last night of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball. It was made after a hectic day, during which fresh charges were flung by O'Connell, who has been banished for all time from the game together with Cozy Dolan, Giant coach, accused of instigating the bribery plot and during which prominent baseball officials including President Ban Johnson, of the American league, and President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, asserted the series should be called off as a result of scandal.

Unmoved apparently by the day's developments and declining to amplify the statement he issued late last night in New York, disclosing the plot and debarring O'Connell and Dolan, the commissioner declared he saw no prospect of a development that would prevent the start of the championship battle Saturday between Washington's first time pennant winner and the Giants.

Pretty Medieval Legend

The story of the custom of conveying a kiss by a cross, is that there was once a young man in the days of knighthood and chivalry and guttering deeds, named Sir Ronald du Bois, who was sent on a dangerous mission and was taken prisoner. He had left at home a fair and beautiful sweetheart, and it was his desire to send her some message. A bribed messenger promised to take some symbol to her but refused to bear a written message for fear he would be taken prisoner and the letter found. The knight therefore sent her a metal button from his coat on which he had scratched four letters at the four points of an X. The letters were h, i s, s. Since this famous message, other lovers have used the X to stand for kisses, but omit the letters at each point. However the romantic story has never been forgotten.—Atlanta Constitution.

"THE SIGNAL TOWER" A MASTERLY PLAY

Most of us move among our fellows never giving a thought to how interesting their daily lives may be; nor does it strike one that his or her daily life may be of interest. But when one has the good fortune to see a photoplay like "The Signal Tower," which comes to the Majestic Friday for a two days' engagement, one comes away with a realization that there is nothing quite so interesting as daily life.

"The Signal Tower" is a Universal-super-Jewel in which Virginia Valli stars. It was directed by Clarence L. Brown, who stepped into the fore ranks of directors by "The Acquittal," also a Universal production. The picture was made from the prize-winning story by Wadsworth Camp.

Miss Valli was supported by a small but unusually capable cast, and the story required no elaborate stage setting, for the filming was done in the redwood forests of Northern California, where great trees created a cathedral. Here the hand of man constructed a railroad.

In this forest cathedral at the altar of a home, a man, a woman and a child, patrols and sun, worshipped through the medium of love and homely tasks—tasks no more unusual nor spectacular than those of most of us. But enacted on the screen they become such acts of devotion as to make one blink away the tears of sympathy.

Rockliffe Fellowes and Wallace Beery share the honors of the male characters with little Frankie Darro.

Rain Like Soot.

On Sunday, November 9, 1879, a dense black cloud descended on Montreal, according to Doctor Atherton's history. The cloud deposited a substance that looked and tasted like soot. On the following Tuesday, after a dark morning of gloom, with the sun clouds at times greenish black, pitch black, dingy orange and blood red, so that some thought Montreal was going to be another Pompeii, and that Mount Royal would erupt. At three in the afternoon rain fell again of the same sooty character, amid fearful thunder and lightning. At four the summit of the steeple of Notre Dame church was struck by lightning. Before the fire was extinguished the cross fell in pieces. As the sooty substance flowed along the gutters it carried a dense foam like soapsuds.

SHACKLED BY MATE WIFE SLAYS SELF

Mrs. E. M. Coury shot and killed herself in her home in Lorain, O., while her husband shackled her to his side at night so she couldn't get out of bed and meet other men. Coury says she took her life because his small wage wouldn't allow her to buy finery.

Restaurant Man Didn't Eat His Own Food

"It's pretty tough for a restaurant man to have stomach trouble. My customers were always telling me I ought to eat in a good restaurant. The fact was I couldn't eat a thing that didn't bloat me up and no medicine or doctors helped me. I tried everything recommended and at last Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and I assure you I didn't have to look any further. Since taking it I have been a well man." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.

Glastonbury Thorn Was Staff of St. Joseph

The beautiful story of the Glastonbury thorn begins in the dawn of Christianity with Joseph of Arimathea, one of the devoted band of disciples sent forth to carry the gospel to the ends of the earth.

St. Joseph was accompanied by twelve others, and the little company of zealots pursued their weary way to the west of England, to the ancient isle of Avalon, says the Detroit News. When Joseph and his companions, footsore, hungry and weary, one day at twilight came to a hill southwest of Glastonbury and saw a fairyland valley beneath wrapped around by the silver ribbon of the Brent river, they knew their wanderings were over and that there they should raise a citadel of faith to their risen Lord.

Deep into the earth Joseph struck the staff that had given him such good service on the long march, as a token that his work should take root there and flourish. This thorn staff was a cutting from the very Palestinian thorn tree, according to tradition, from which thirty years before had been stripped branches and pointed leaves to make the crown of mockery worn by the Man of Sorrows on the cross.

The staff so impulsively planted took root, according to the legend, and blossomed, strangely enough at time, at the same time bearing ripe fruit. It was said that Joseph also brought with him to Glastonbury the holy cup, known as the holy grail.

Experienced Actors Need Good Director

The young and inexperienced actor does not need direction half as much as the leading man no longer in the first, second or even third flush of giddy youth who has been in the habit of browbeating the humble author and the obsequious stage manager, and who brings to his work in addition to an inability to learn his lines, all the old bad tricks of barnstorming days and the determination to keep to the middle of the stage even if, like the boy who stood on the burning deck, he has killed the play stone dead.

The modern star, of course, stands in need of elementary teaching with every part that she essays. Otherwise the electric bulbs that blazen her name over the entrance of the theater pop, one after another, blackening the lives of manager, author, company, stage hands and all the other people who hang about the theater for their daily bread.—Cosmo Hamilton in the Saturday Evening Post.

Burns

It is not the men of letters who have handled Burns with the surest touch. Men to whom letters mean little or nothing are quicker to understand him. The fact is that Burns is everyman. . . . This wonderful instinct for truth and frankness is the secret of his genius and of his style. Perhaps it is the secret of all great style. . . . No sermon worth so much as a tallow dip has ever been preached on the life of Burns, but the mere story of his life is an enthralling drama. . . . It is true that at Ellisland and Dumfries he wrote not a few of his finest songs, and that "Tam o' Shanter," in many ways the strongest and maturest of all his works, belongs to his closing years. . . . In "Tam o' Shanter," especially, he surpasses himself; no masterpiece of narrative so concise, so various, so telling, is to be found even in Chaucer. Is it not a strange thing that the king of poetic story-tellers told only one story?—Sir Walter Raleigh.

The Sisters

'Twixt Minnie Mumm and Maxie Mumm much difference there be. When Minnie Mumm was forty-five, Maxie was sixty-three.

Yet stranger things than this we knew—that year we kept full score: When Minnie Mumm was twenty-nine, Maxie was ninety-four!

When these two maidens went to work disparity was seen. While Minnie Mumm put in five hours, our Maxie toiled thirteen.

But when they came to draw their pay perhaps they made it straight. Our Minnie Mumm pinched fourteen bucks—Maxie banked forty-eight.

So from the cradle to the grave the girls showed variant skins. They seemed so dreadful far apart—and yet, b'gee! were twins.—Los Angeles Times.

Hair Woven Into Cloth

To demonstrate the value of its beautiful white coat as raw material for weaving cloth, a Samoyed dog, a species best known in the Arctic circle, was exhibited at a lecture of the Royal Society of Arts in London. The hair used is from the combings—the undercoat that comes naturally twice a year. It was said that the commercial possibilities of garments made from this product have been proved.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Viands Have Many Names

The wiseacre says that the expression "Welsh rabbit" is a perversion of Welsh rarebit, but this is a mistake. The man who first made this suggestion had no sense of humor.

As a matter of fact, the table furnishes many examples of names of viands which have an alias of the same humorous description as Welsh rabbit. Sailors, for instance, call a shark steak "Folkestone beef, and fisher folk commonly call smoked herring "Digby chicken."

A similar instance to Welsh rabbit is provided by poached egg on toast being known as "Scotch woodcock," and an Australian leg of mutton as "Colonial goose."—London Times.

No Secrets in His Life

A man who had amassed a fortune by his own efforts liked to annoy his wife by telling credulous acquaintances about fictitious early hardships Placed next to a dowager at dinner, he was sure to tell the following story.

"I never learned to read or write until I was twenty one My principal garment up to the age of twelve was a coffee bag. Down in the mountains where I was raised a brand popular in those days was triple X, and you can see a triple X across my shoulders to this day."

Many Uses for Myrrh

Myrrh is a substance which exudes from the bark of a gum resin tree known as the myrrh tree, which grows in Arabia and eastern Africa. Its smell is balsamic, its taste aromatic and bitter. Myrrh was commonly used by the ancients for fumigation. Myrrh is used in medicine as a tonic and stimulant, in disorders of the digestive organs, excessive secretions from the mucous membrane, etc. also to cleanse foul ulcers and promote their healing, and as a mouth and throat gargle.

Assyrian Horticulture

Many [illegible] plants and flowers are referred to in the ancient cuneiform tablets dug up in the ruins of Babylon and other Assyrian cities Fifty more, many of them drug plants have been identified quite recently through a study of the relative frequency in which the names occur, their therapeutic use, and the comparison of the word with the name of the flower or plant in other Semitic languages. Among the new plants believed to have been identified are the rose, the daisy, mustard, asafoetida sumach, hemp, chamomile, apricot, cherry and mulberry.

Meaning of "Dickens"

"Dickens" is an interjectional expression signifying astonishment, impatience and irritation. It is usually used with words of interrogation such as what, where, how and why. The name has nothing to do with Charles Dickens It was used by Shakespeare over two centuries before Dickens was born In "Merry Wives of Windsor" Mrs Page says "I cannot tell what the dickens his name is my husband had him of." "Dickens" is believed to be a euphemism for deuce or devil, which have the same initial letter.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Make for Happiness

All real and wholesome enjoyments possible to man have been just as possible to him since first he was made of the earth, as they are now, and they are possible to him chiefly in peace. To watch the corn grow, and the [illegible] soil; to draw hard breath over plowshare or spade, to read, to think, to love, to hope, to pray—these are the things that make men happy —John Ruskin.

Herod's Wonderful Temple

Herod's temple, a structure of white marble, was built by Herod the Great at Jerusalem on the site of the Temple of Zerubbabel. Work was begun [illegible] half the temple was ready for use.

The building, says the Detroit News, was much larger than the preceding one and measured 100 cubits in length, and 70 cubits in breadth and 100 cubits in height. The stones composing this edifice were of large dimensions, some of them being 25 cubits long, 8 cubits high and 12 cubits thick. The temple, "which rose like a mount of gold and snow," was totally destroyed by the Romans under Titus in 70 A. D. The site is now occupied by the Mosque of Omar.

TOMORROW'S FUNCTION.

Given under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs of Charleroi, there will be held at the Elks club tomorrow afternoon a Musical Tea and Baby Clinic, the funds derived from the Tea to be devoted to the local hospital fund The ladies have pledged themselves for the support of the new hospital project, and the object being altogether worthy, the public should attend the Tea in large numbers.

Amplified to the Tea will be the Baby Clinic, which since its institution here, has proved of such incalculable benefit to the mothers of the children.

It is not often that a function is so amalgamated in its interests as to be both beneficial and pleasurable, such as the one which tomorrow afternoon affords; and we are cognizant of no occasion taking place in Charleroi of late that will give the patrons the measure of enjoyment and benefit as will the Musical Tea and Baby Clinic at the Elks club tomorrow afternoon. Surely, there is room and an abundance of it, for congratulation to the promoters of the double movement, and its happy conception should meet with successful termination—with the full fruition of the hopes of the loyal and public-spirited ladies promoting the affair realized.

THE NEW REPUBLICAN.

The Monongahela Republican comes to our desk today under new ownership and in decidedly improved form. One important improvement noted is, the taking from the first page of unsightly display advertising. The Mail greets the newcomers to the Monongahela journalistic field, and extends to them its best wishes for the future.

The Republican, in its new ownership, finds the name of Claude E. Towner, candidate for representative, at the masthead as editor, with the business affairs of the paper in the hands of a board of directors. In his salutatory, Mr. Towner says it is the "purpose of the board of directors to make the paper a worthy exponent of an aggressive city, and that the business policy will be based on a broad cooperation with the program for building a greater and better community."

In the proposed improvement by the owners, of the standard of the Republican to conform with a better Monongahela, we trust that the people whom the journal will benefit will lend their hearty and appreciative cooperation.

THE HATLESS MAN.

Defending the practice of going without a hat in summer in McNought's Monthly on the ground of comfort, Fred C. Kelly mentions other "practical advantages" as follows: "I have discovered that a hatless man may enter with impunity many places where he would otherwise be stopped. Hatless, one can sometimes stroll into the front door of a theatre—without a ticket and without question. When I wish to visit a committee room in the national Capitol I first leave my hat and coat elsewhere Even the private lobby back of the United States Senate is easy of access to him who carries no headgear. If in a hurry to catch a train I simply remove my hat and the gate man never bothers about looking at my ticket."

Presumably this description of the commercial and other gain within reach of the hatless man is intended as humor, for Mr. Kelly can hardly wish to publish himself as a "dead heat" who goes after and gets what does not belong to him under false pretenses. Of course comfort is the chief object of the average hatless man. No doubt it is more comfortable to go without a hat in the relatively cool summer days of a temperate clime, provided one's eyes are strong enough not to require the shade of a hat-brim. And in moderation the practice may be good for both the scalp and the hair, inasmuch as every variety of soil and vegetable growth draw vigor from the sun. But, except around home, the hatless man can hardly afford to be sensitive and needs to cultivate somewhat of that indifference to [illegible]

LAFOLLETTE'S CHIEF ISSUE.

Candidate La Follette ought to be more explicit in his discussion of "private monopoly," which he insists is the paramount issue of the campaign. He should state more particularly what he would do that has not already been done in the way of prevention. For the issue is an old one and everybody outside of the monopolies is already supposed to be against them. Much has been done in the course of years to curb them. As far back as 1887 the Interstate Commerce law was passed and a commission was created to see that the railroads did not charge unreasonable rates. About two decades later Congress even empowered the Commission to fix all railroad rates In 1890 Congress enacted the Sherman law to prevent commercial combinations in restraint of trade and under it there have been many prosecutions, some with and some without the looked-for results. The Steel Corporation was acquitted on the ground that there was enough competition to relieve it of the charge of monopoly. The Standard Oil was convicted as a monopoly and was forced to dissolve its constituent corporations. Even the national banks are not allowed to have branches lest something like monopoly in banking should result.

There is now a vague but pretty general impression that already the subject has been ventilated, that already about all has been done in the way of prevention, or preventive statutes that is feasible—unless all corporations are abolished and business is confined to individuals and partnerships. Obviously the public and government alike shrink from anything so radically extreme, fearing that in thus removing all possibility of monopoly business itself would be largely destroyed. Would Mr. La Follette go as far as that, or is lack of enforcement of existing laws his chief concern? In any case he should point out clearly the evils still existing, and name his remedies and fully defend them.

THE OFFICE CAT

New York is the city of opportunity. A man who went there broke now owes $203,05.85.

The girls aren't concerned these days with how much money a fellow's dad has—it's how much of dad's money the fellow has, which counts.

I have never seen the face of a clock that could tell me when to go to work or quit.

Capital, as far as a newspaper editor is concerned, is that which he has to give his note for.

Another good way to get your wife to come home from her summer vacation is to write about the end of the first month and ask her where the clean pillow slips and sheets are.

I had ambitions for my 9-month-old son, tells a Charleroi man, but I am afraid now that he is growing up to be a hamburger merchant. The only thing he can say sounds like "hot dog."

MY DENTIST.

Who holds my head upon his arm,
As if to shield me from all harm,
Yet fills my mind with sore alarm?
My Dentist.

Who opens wide my mouth so small
And though for help I'd like to call
He will not let me speak at all?
My Dentist

Mayhap he's never felt such pain,
But if he has, he doth but feign,
Such stoicism, all in vain,
My Dentist.

Such scientific reasoning,
With anathetic seasoning,
Gives me no cause his praise to sing—
My Dentist.

But when at last the work is o'er
And I'm outside his office door,
I'll send my friends to him, I'm sure
My Dentist.

LaFollette's personally conducted political party has adopted a picture of the Liberty Bell for its emblem. Possibly because the famous old bell is cracked, too.

CENSORS MAKE "EVE" DRESS UP

Is this costume immoral? First, censors made Marion Harley, portraying "Eve" in a New York revue, put on stockings. Now they threaten to make her dress up even more than this.

Meaning of "Cuba"

The meaning of the word "Cuba" is unknown. The island was known by that name among the natives when it was discovered in 1492 by Columbus Several attempts were made by Columbus to have the island named after various members of the Spanish royal family, but they all failed.

Where Women Propose

It is the women who do the proposing in Dahomey. When a girl reaches the age of eighteen she is eligible for matrimony and she at once sets out to find some one willing to marry her. Frequently she takes a husband on trial for a month or two before choosing him for better or worse.

Proud Man Alone Knows Not Value of Fasting

Man knows that wild creatures of the forest and plain at times go through 48 empty hours without making a kill. He knows also that certain peoples fast at times as a religious duty, and this without in any way impairing their health. Finally he knows that individuals have done without food in any form for weeks and have gained rather than lost, by the experience, says the Baltimore Sun.

His love for food is so deeply ingrained, however, that when his mule, cow and dog refuse to eat, his wits at once cease to function. He reasons in this way: "When these creatures were well they ate heartily. Now that they refuse to eat, they must be ill. If I am to make them well again, I must by some means force them to eat."

So it is when man himself is indisposed by reason of some indiscretion. He does not wish to eat. The very thought of food is an abomination. But his wife, whose love is greater than her reason, says to him: "Honey, you simply must eat in order to keep up your strength, and I have prepared a number of dishes you like in order to tempt your appetite."

The little will that remains to him after one glance at the table urges him to flee, but his greedy palate prevails and he eats heartily. The result is that his overburdened system, striving with all its cunning to get him back to normal, must quit its task for a while and take care of the new cargo he has shoveled aboard. Nature knows its business but is badly handicapped when those it desires to save

Smoking Introduced in America by the Chinese

The Indian long has enjoyed the reputation of having invented the pipe and bequeathed to white men the joys of tobacco. Recent discoveries in the West indicate, however, that the Indian in turn may have inherited the smoking habit from a much earlier period, and that smoking was introduced into America by the Chinese at some remote time. It is certain that the East Indians have been smoking for some two thousand years.

Long before tobacco was discovered smoking had become a fine art. Babylon doubtless had many smokers who were as particular about their pipes and brands as any one today. They smoked different woods and herbs and paid special attention to blending them to get the desired flavor. A piece of wood was burned to a charcoal and smoked in an ornamented pipe. When the charcoal was red hot a powder was dropped on it and the resulting smoke was inhaled. Throughout Central Asia in remote times smokers were common and were exacting about the 'tobacco,' or whatever it was they smoked. They used the gum from trees, bark and many aromatic herbs and smoked various kinds of flowers.

Soldiers have been smokers from remote antiquity. The Russian military seems still yield pipes. The ruins of Roman cities, notably Pompeii, show that smoking must have been common. Many of the pipe designs were most elaborate.—New York Times

Yankee Genius Floods World With Everything

I make bold to believe that in the United States today at the close of this first quarter of this Twentieth century there can be seen an ingenuity in plot making and a fertility in devising situations recalling that which was to be observed in France in the days of Scribe and Dennery and Sardou and in Spain in the days of Lope de Vega and Calderon, two periods of dramaturgic dexterity and of abundant productivity. The American faculty of invention which has filled the world with Yankee contrivances, seems to have been directed suddenly to the construction of plays, says Brander Matthews in Scribner's. I am aware that to say this is to lay myself open to the retort that our plays are as machine-made as our Yankee contrivances and even that we are engaged in quantity production rather than quality production. If thus cornered I should have to confess that there may be more than a little truth in the charge; but I should proffer as my rejoinder the statement that not a few of the American plays of this century are as interesting in the library as they are in the theater.

Discovered

A young man whose gallantry was in excess of his pecuniary means sought to remedy the defect and to save the money required for the purpose of expensive flowers by arranging with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time in return for his cast-off clothes.

One day he received a bunch of roses which he at once dispatched to his lady love

In sure anticipation of a friendly welcome he called at the girl's house the same evening and was not a little surprised at a frosty reception.

After a pause the girl remarked, frigidly: "You sent me a note today."

"A note! I? To be sure, I sent you flowers; but—"

"And this note was with the bouquet. Do you mean to deny it?"

And the young man read: "Don't forget the old trousers you promised me the other day."

Big Lips for Beauty Is Idea of Africans

The women of the Lake Tchad region of Central Africa vie with one another as to who can possess the longest lips.

When girls are about four or five years old their future husbands pierce a hole in the center of the upper and lower lips with a big thorn or a knife. Through these holes he places thick straws or reeds.

In a few weeks, when the girl has become used to the punctures, wooden pegs the size of a lead pencil are pushed into the holes, says London Tit-Bits. Three months later, when the lips have become accustomed to the distension, larger pegs are inserted. At twenty-five a fashionable matron of the Saras-Djinges tribe is likely to have disks seven inches wide in the lower lip and five inches wide in the upper. Up to this time the disks stick straight out like birds' bills, but now they drop down from their weight.

After this larger disks are inserted about once a year. It is a matter of social pride with a woman to go on increasing her lips as long as possible.

Bean Boards

Bean boards is a new article which one of the mills in Baton Rouge has recently started to manufacture. It is used for feeding animals and is chiefly exported to America. The boards are of rectangular shape, measuring 28 by 12 inches, with a thickness of eight-tenths of an inch. By submitting them to higher pressure than is applied in the case of beancake, they contain less moisture, rendering them less liable to become moldy in transit. The venture is still in the experimental stage, and its future is looked forward to with interest.—Scientific American.

The North Star

Polaris, or the North star, is to navigators north of the equator the most important of all stars. It cannot be seen south of the equator. It is the second magnitude star at the end of the handle of the "little dipper." It is readily found by aid of the pointers of the "big dipper," which are the two stars in the bowl of the dipper located farthest from the handle. A line drawn through these stars and extended a distance equal to about five times the distance between them brings us to Polaris.

Raise Fine Specimens of Butterfly in France

Butterfly culture in the south of France is rapidly growing in popularity. Here, under expert scientific guidance, hundreds of beautiful specimens are bred. The farms are provided with special leafy trees and plants on which the eggs are hatched. Directly the young appear the branches are taken to a well-ventilated room, where they are placed in jars of water. As soon as the caterpillars have eaten up this first supply of leaves fresh branches are provided. Having been in an even temperature for about two weeks, the young caterpillars are taken out into the open, where they are placed on plants protected from birds by nets. When fully grown this protective net is removed and soon they retire into cocoons or roll themselves up into leaves. These are collected and stored in boxes, where in a very short time butterflies of wonderful hues are evolved. Cross-breeding has been tried and numerous experiments are conducted to obtain brilliant and original markings on the wings of these insects, which are afterward sold to collectors or for the adornment of women's hats and dresses.

Dolly Madison

Dolly Madison, at the time of her marriage to James Madison, was a young widow, Dorothy Payne Todd, daughter of John and Mary (Coles) Payne of North Carolina and a widow of John Todd. Her maternal grandmother was a granddaughter of Sir Thomas Fleming, one of the pioneer settlers of Jamestown. Upon the death of her first husband, Mrs. Todd lived with her mother and assisted her in keeping a boarding house in Philadelphia. One of her mother's boarders was James Madison, representative from Virginia in the Third congress. In 1794 Mrs. Todd and Madison married.

Damascus a Bus Center

Three motor bus lines are now being operated between Damascus and Beirut, Syria. One of these is being managed by a railroad company which has a rail line running between these points. There are also bus lines between Damascus and two other cities. The privately owned cars registered in this era now number about 160 as compared with about a third that number a year ago.

Tiny Republic Admitted to United States in '34

Indian Stream republic existed within the present boundaries of the United States. Charles Parker of River Falls, Wis., a former lieutenant governor of the state, was a boy in the tiny domain ruled by his father. The republic endured more than a decade, successfully defying both the United States and Great Britain—an independent nation, with politicians, militia, civil rights and taxes.

In 1783, when Great Britain and the thirteen colonies signed the treaty that created a new nation, they forgot a little valley tucked away in the New Hampshire hills. In 1820 a handful of settlers in the valley woke up to the fact that they were in no man's land. They were not Americans. They were not Canadians. Then Canada interpreted the treaty of 1783 to include the territory in British domain. America promptly said it belonged to her. Then along came Luther Parker, adventurer and trader, who organized the settlers and set up a government of which he naturally was elected head. The little valley government at once drew the fire of both Canada and the United States.

Matters came to a head in 1834 when a group of Canadian sympathizers ambushed Parker one night and carried him across the border. The [illegible] soon dismissed and Parker returned to Indian Stream. He circulated petitions asking admission into the state of New Hampshire on behalf of the republic. Parker went westward, and was the first white settler where Milwaukee now stands.—Detroit News.

Realistic Flowers Made From Glass by Experts

Marvelous artificial blooms that resemble Nature's finest specimens in every respect except scent, are now being made by expert glassblowers.

Every part of a flower or plant is faithfully reproduced, from the long, delicate stems and colored petals to the almost invisible pollen.

The first thing which the maker of these wonderful blooms does is to blow the petals from glass as thin and fragile as tissue paper. The glass petals are then shaped and colored exactly like the natural ones.

Some of the rarer plants cannot be easily reproduced, and often several experiments have to be carried out with different colors before a really good imitation is obtained.

These glass flowers are used extensively in museums, both to show details of plant or flower formation and as backgrounds for displaying specimens of birds and insects.—London Answers.

A Woman's Postscript

Do all wives open their husbands' letters? Was Harry's mother only taking precautions that any woman should take, or was her daughter-in-law a special offender and as such especially sensitive on the subject? We leave that to our readers to settle. This is the story as the Argonaut reports it:

"Harry, dear!" exclaimed little Mrs. Simpson to her husband. 'I have b-been d-dreadfully insulted!"

"Insulted! By whom?'

"B-by your mother," answered the young wife, bursting into tears.

"My mother, Flora? Nonsense! She's miles away!"

Flora dried her tears. "I'll tell you all about it," she said. "A letter came for you this morning addressed in your mother's writing, so I—I opened it."

"Of course," said Harry.

"It—it was written to you all through. Do you understand?"

"I understand. But where is the insult?"

"In the p-p-postscript," cried the wife, bursting into fresh floods of tears. "It said 'D-dear Flora, d'don't fail to give this l-letter to Harry. I w-want him to have it'"

Efficacy of Tar Water

Rev. George Berkeley, bishop of Cloyne, was an ethereal philosopher who set out to undermine the stolid materialism of his time, and two hundred years ago he maintained that matter cannot be conceived to exist the only possible substance being mind. "The material world," he said, "is nothing but a complex of ideas which come and go with an order and coherence that constitute the law of nature."

The good bishop sometimes descended to earth to discuss the simple, mundane things. He had a curious obsess on regarding the medicinal efficacy of tar water, which was much used in his time as a drink beneficial to all human ailments. "Tar water," the bishop held, "is of a nature so mild and benign and so proportioned to the human constitution as to warm without heating, to cheer but not inebriate.—Detroit News.

Shocked

"In some parts of the Orient," remarked Hoffy, "a man says three times to his wife, 'I divorce you,' and the deed is done. I was telling this in a smoker and one gentleman present was horrified."

"The good man was shocked, eh?"

"I don't know how good he was, but he was shocked all right. He was a divorce lawyer."

Oh, G'wan Widja!

Yesterday all the street cars in the city stopped."

"What was wrong?"

"Why, so the people could get on and off."

Regard Heads of Foes as Greatest Trophies

The vast forest regions lying on either side of the Amazon are probably the least known and the most dangerous portions of the world. All this is brought out forcibly in Charles W. Domville-Fife's book, "Among Wild Tribes of the Amazons."

The tribes are full of strange and barbarous customs. Most of them regard the heads of slain enemies as great trophies. Mr. Domville-Fife managed to discover in one tribe the place where the heads were prepared.

"Here at last was the secret death-house of the Huambisa. The floor was hard with congealed blood drained from human bodies for unknown years. At frequent intervals this fierce tribe attacks neighboring villages, capturing the women and girls and killing the men. The bodies of those slain are then decapitated and the heads brought back in triumph.

"These ghastly trophies are stuck on lances, and the tribe assembles round them for a wild night orgy. Drinking, feasting and unnamable debauchery continue until dawn, when the heads are removed by the witch doctors to the death house."

One of the most mysterious stories told by Mr. Domville-Fife is about the poison called yage which gives to people events "of which they can never have either seen or heard in full consciousness. European cities, music and current events have been pictured in detail unprovided for by the meager vocabulary of the native dialect, and only possible of communication with the aid of rough drawings."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Becket Was Murdered by the King's Knights

Thomas a Becket was the archbishop of Canterbury and a great advocate of church rights, even defending the church against Henry II, whose partisan he had formerly been. Henry II was overheard to pray "to be rid of this turbulent priest." Accordingly four knights murdered the archbishop in the Canterbury cathedral December 29, 1170.

Becket was canonized by the church and Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" were told of a pilgrimage to his shrine, which formerly existed in Trinity chapel, Canterbury cathedral, England. It contained the bones of the martyr-bishop, removed thither from the crypt of the cathedral in 1220, and remained for three centuries the object of one of the famous pilgrimages of Christendom.

In 1538 Henry VIII despoiled and demolished the shrine, caused Becket's name to be stricken from the calendar and ordered his bones to be burned and scattered to the winds. The pavement of the chapel and the stone steps that lead up to the place where the shrine formerly stood are worn by the knees of countless pilgrims.—Detroit News.

Love and Life at Vigo

Love at a distance until you are engaged is the rule in Spain. As a result of that somewhat inconvenient custom lovers are driven to strange expedients to communicate with each other. Consider the gentleman of Vigo whom Mr. Ralph Stock tells about in the "Cruise of the Dream Ship."

Picture, if you can, says Mr. Stock, a well-dressed Spanish gentleman standing in the middle of one of the main thoroughfares and gazing toward one of the housetops; he is apparently engaged in practicing the deaf-and-dumb alphabet. No one of the stream of pedestrians passing along the sidewalks takes the slightest notice of him; neither does the wheeled traffic, except to swerve obligingly out of his path. It is his affair, and a love affair at that. He is conversing with his inamorata at the third floor balcony window yonder. It needed three vulgar sightseers such as the crew of the Dream Ship to find anything unusual in the proceeding. I am ashamed to say that the lady caught sight of us and pointed in alarm; whereupon the gentleman turned with an excusable frown of annoyance, and we hurried on our way.—Youth's Companion.

Insects Lead All

It is computed that there are five times as many different kinds of insects as there are species of all other living things put together. Seventy years ago the number of species of insects preserved in collections was about 170,000. Today it is estimated that there are 750,000 sorts, and that without counting the parasitic creatures. In Europe alone there are 350,000 species. Most insects live on trees or plants. There are known to be 450 sorts which make their home in oak trees, and about 200 in the pine. Of beetles alone the varieties exceed 190,000.

Bill—Why the gloomy look, Joe?

Joe—I'm in trouble. My wife overheard me telling Steve Jackson that I had had two misses in my car the evening before.

"But that is no excuse for a row. Why, every motorist has engine trouble."

"But she found out that only one of them was in the engine."

GET AT THE CAUSE!

Many Charleroi Folks Are Showing How to Avoid Needless Suffering.

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Charleroi people. Profit by this Charleroi resident's experience.

Geo. Gunderman, 303 Washington Ave., says: "I had an attack of kidney disorder and my back was lame and sore. When I bent, sharp darting pains ran through my kidneys. After sitting I could hardly get up. My muscles were stiff and sore mornings and my back was lame and weak. Doan's Pills from Piper's Pharmacy cured me completely and I haven't been troubled since."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills — the same that Mr. Gunderman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

SUMMER COLORS NOW ARE WORN BY OCEANS

Preference for Blue With Foamy White Ruffles.

Washington, D. C.—"The much-traveled Atlantic is putting on its usual color show for the summer tourist. It is exhibiting a decided preference for blue, with soft foamy white ruffles. Sometimes it is wearing sage greens, deep indigo, or royal purple.

"Globe trotters will find the Mediterranean and the Caribbean tricked out in sapphire blue, the Red sea in varying shades of henna, the Yellow sea in beige and tan, the Antarctic in olive green and the shallows of the Gulf of Mexico in a soft turquoise," according to a bulletin issued from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society.

In order to put on such a pleasing display of shade and hue, the seas have summoned to their aid many and varied hosts, notable among which are warmth and cold, sunlight and shadow, sand silt, and possible volcanic dust, salt, lime, and various and sundry kinds of diatoms and algae.

"Absolutely pure water is a clear blue color because the blue rays of sunlight are not absorbed by the water. Open ocean seems intensely blue. Distilled water has a greenish cast due to the impurities which still remain after the distillation. This makes it clear why the shallow water in bays and estuaries is green or yellowish green. One explanation of the olive-green of the ocean in the ... is that it contains enormous quantities of diatoms in suspension.

When a Gray Gown Is Worn.

"Sometimes the ocean wears a gray gown but that usually happens when the clouds shut out the sunlight and then in respect for the grim aspect of the frowning skies it subdues the tones of its garment.

"Two factors contribute largely to the blueness of the Mediterranean: there are few large rivers, which ordinarily bring enormous quantities of impurities, flowing into it, and there is a constant stream of salty water pouring into it from the Atlantic ocean through the Strait of Gibraltar. It is said by some oceanographers that the blue of sea water bears a direct ratio to its saltiness. As an example of this the band of tropical waters extending about thirty degrees on each side of the equator, where there is tremendous evaporation under a blazing sun, is cited. It is true that these waters are very salty and an exquisite azure in color. On the other hand, the Arctic and Antarctic waters, which are cold and less salty, are vivid green.

"The Yellow sea derives its golden tints from the sediment brought to it by the Yellow river and several other streams rising near the desert areas in western China. Scientists also believe that the billions of minute living organisms found in its waters helped give it its name.

A Yellow River in the Atlantic.

"In January, 1909, a peculiar phenomenon was observed in the Atlantic ocean. Running parallel with the warm clear blue waters of the Gulf stream from Cape Florida to Cape Hatteras, there was a yellow river three miles wide. It lasted for a few weeks and then faded away into the surrounding ocean. Some cataclysm on the face of the deep, probably of volcanic origin, had evidently set this yellow stream in motion.

"The dull reddish tint of the Red sea is imparted to it by millions of microscopic algae. A host of the minute Dinoflagellata sometimes will redden the ocean for miles.

"The lovely blue of the waters surrounding the coral islands of the South seas, which have long been famous in song and story, is said to be due to the calcium carbonate which is held in solution.

"The degree of penetration of light into water is a contributing factor in the color of various bodies of water. The Saguenay river, a tributary of the St. Lawrence from the north, is somber and impressive because its waters seem almost black. It winds through high hills which shut out the light and its bed is cut 600 feet deeper than that of the river into which it flows.

"In 1909 the sea off the California coast turned almost black, the waters of Santa Cruz may become particularly inky but no satisfactory explanation has ever been offered of the occurrence."

Goldbeating Is Most Ancient Art in World

The recent regilding of the railings outside of Buckingham palace reminds one that gold-beating is at once the most ancient and the most modern art in the world. It is believed that the art was introduced into this country by the Romans about 2,000 years ago, says the London Tit-Bits. Probably they got it from the Greeks, who in turn were instructed by the Egyptians.

Although powerful machinery is used for goldbeating, the final process has to be done by hand. Seen in its virgin state, in a crucible just taken from the furnace, the gold glistens like diamonds, and after being poured into a mold and cooled in a special bath, a 200-ounce brick of 22-carat quality is worth about £900.

The men who beat gold by hand wield hammers weighing fourteen or twenty-one pounds each. The skill of the workers is such that gold can be beaten to the thinness of 1-282,000th of an inch, and one ounce can be made to cover an area of more than 200 square feet.

A skilled craftsman takes a week to beat two and a half ounces of gold into leaf, and one ounce produces 2,500 gold ... three and a quarter inches sq... —London Tit-Bits.

Where Realization Beats Anticipation

One of the most delightful experiences that I know comes to me whenever I leave the city and plunge for a time into the wilderness. It does not matter how prosaic the transition, I may stumble, laden with baggage, to a hot and crowded train, in which stodgy men are forever bowed over the sporting page and tired women are scolding peevish children and scattered fragments of their too generous lunches cover the floor; the train may snort and fume its tedious way through leagues of suburban ugliness. All that does not matter. I can shut my eyes with the sense of a blessed release, for I know that at the end of the journey there is tranquillity, writes William Chase Greene in the North American Review. Long before I have actually reached the hills I can feel the breath of the pine forest, I can feel the coolness of that first dip in the lake closing about me; already I am standing at the edge of a cliff, watching the cloud shadows on the distant range.

The peculiar delight of the adventure, however, is that realization always surpasses anticipation. That dip in the lake is always more deliciously cool than I had imagined; the stillness of the mountain side, the broken chorus of bird notes, the hushed voice of a hidden waterfall, the whiteness of the forest flowers, always overcome me with a new surprise. The very sense of remoteness, though eagerly expected, seems unexpected.

Most Violent Storms Occur in United States

The most violent storms known anywhere occur in the interior of the North American continent, especially in the middle western United States, and most frequently in late spring and summer. Their most conspicuous feature is a whirling black cloud hanging from a mass of dark storm clouds.

This cloud may be funnel shaped or balloon shaped, or like the trunk of a huge elephant. It is really a waterspout on land, though larger than the marine waterspout. It sweeps over a path averaging a quarter of a mile in width and about twenty-five miles in length. Wherever it touches the earth it accomplishes surpassing feats of devastation.

In comparison with the area covered by a cyclone one of these storms is of insignificant size. It is, in fact, a purely local affair. Hence, at any given place in the United States such a storm is an exceedingly rare event, though throughout the country several such storms occur every year. These storms are known to meteorologists as "tornadoes." In popular parlance they are almost universally, but incorrectly described as "cyclones."—Detroit News.

Life of Railroad Spikes

The durability of railroad spikes depends entirely on the type of track and traffic hauled; however, heavy spikes should last about fifteen years and light spikes from twenty-one to twenty-five years. For general repairs approximately thirty-six spikes per mile per month may be used.

Are Using These Rare Powders

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I did not intend to supply powders to women. My only idea was to furnish them my greatest beauty helps. But thousands of women have urged me, by letter and in person, to tell them the powders I use.

Edna Wallace Hopper
Photo 1923

Like all my friends on the stage and in the movies, I use very costly powders. I have them made to my order, and they cost me $5 per box. Our careers depend on our looks, and nothing is too costly.

But I have suaded the makers to offer these powders at ordinary prices. I order them in quantities, under my name. I offer them at my expense to girls and women who desire the best.

Now all druggists and toilet counters supply Edna Wallace Hopper's Powders. There are two kinds. For myself I prefer a clinging powder, a cold cream powder, based on my Youth Cream. It is enduring. That Youth Cream Powder costs $1. But many women prefer a light and fluffy powder. If you want that kind, it costs shades—white, flesh and brunette.

So far as I know these powders are the best in existence. You may be sure that if anyone produced a better powder I would get it quickly. Anyone who uses common powders will gain a new conception of what powders should be.

Let me send you a sample. Just ... this coupon and tell me the kind you want.

Old Cornish Tongue Soon to Be Memory

"Nebbuz Gerriau Dro Tho Carnoack" was the title of an address delivered to the members of the London Cornish association by Dr. Lewney Roberts, one of the few men still able to speak the old tongue of Cornwall. Translated these mysterious syllables emerge as "A Few Words About Cornish."

Cornish, Mr. Roberts pointed out, is not quite so dead as is popularly believed, and he produced as evidence a postcard written by a little girl of eleven, who had learned the language from her father, says the Living Age. Prince Lucian Bonaparte is responsible for the legend that Dorothy Pentreath, who died in 1787, was the last person who spoke Cornish, a legend that is perpetuated on her tombstone.

The old lady used to swear at tourists in Cornish, usually ending with the words—in discreet Cornish—"Ugly black toad!" in exchange for the coppers lavished upon her by the visitors. John Davey of Zennor who did not die until 1891, could speak it fluently.

Ninety per cent of the place names in modern Cornwall show traces of the old language. In spite of the pioneer achievements of Mistress Pentreath, Cornish boasts for its "God's curse in the kitchen" as regards ... an alarming crisis.

Famous Old Church

This year sees the three hundred and sixty-fourth anniversary of the demolition of the magnificent Church of St. John at Perth, the restoration of which is now contemplated.

This is without doubt one of the most interesting churches in Scotland, says the Weekly Edinburgh Scotsman. Tradition ascribes its foundation to the Picts, but, whoever founded it, it is one of the earliest stone churches built in the country; and, in the Twelfth and Thirteenth centuries, as evinced both by ancient documents and by the surviving remnants of the edifice of that time, it was magnificent and extensive. The monk of Dunfermline to whom it was granted allowed it to fall into disrepair—a state of affairs which Robert the Bruce set about remedying, but the restoration was stayed by his death.

Rays Control Weight

The ultraviolet ray is equally effective as a weight reducer or producer, according to Drs. Livet and Vautier, who described to the Academy of Medicine the excellent results obtained when the rays were applied to a number of obese patients bringing about a loss in weight of from eight to 20 pounds after 20 applications. The same rays, used to tone up debilitated patients, caused them to put on flesh.—New York World.

New Use for Sandblast

A novel application of the sandblast has been discovered by an English company—that of cleaning boiler tubes. It is claimed that the tubes of modern tubular boilers are rapidly cleaned of soot, etc., on the outside, and that the interior of each tube can be cleared of scale or other deposit thoroughly, and at a much greater speed, than by any other existing method. This certainly has the merit ...

The Only Wart Recipe

A miserable imposter has been traveling over this country selling a recipe for taking off warts, when everybody knows that the only way to take off a wart is to rub it with a potato, which is afterward buried by a red-headed colored man in the northeast corner of a graveyard at midnight in the dark of the moon. As the potato decays the wart will disappear.—Bethany (Mo.) Clipper.

LOCOMOTIVES IN GOOD CONDITION FOR FALL TRAFFIC

The locomotive equipment of the railroads on September 1, was in the best condition to meet the seasonal fall increase in traffic that it has been since early in the year, according to the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association.

On that date, they had 53,618 serviceable locomotives, an increase of 726 over the number reported on August 15, and the largest number reported at any one time since January 1 this year when there were 54,031

The railroads on September 1 also had 6,762 serviceable locomotives in storage, ready for use whenever traffic conditions warrant This was, however, a decrease of 164 compared with the number in storage on August 15.

During the last half of August 33,178 locomotives were repaired and turned out of the shops, an increase of 4,165 over the number repaired during the first half of August.

As a result of this increased activity on the part of the railroads in preparing to handle the usual increases in need of repairs on September 1 totaled 10,964 or 17 per cent of the number on line compared with 11,623 or 18 per cent on August 15, a decrease of 659.

Locomotives in need of classified repairs on September 1 totaled 6,023 or 9.3 per cent, a decrease of 370 compared with August 15, while 4,941 or 7.7 per cent were in need of running repairs, a decrease of 289 compared with the same preceding date.
